Lee Harding was raised by his grandparents west of Assiniboia. He first gained prominence as a TV reporter but later became a provincial taxpayer advocate and assistant for a Member of Parliament. Today, Lee writes for a Western Canadian think tank, freelances as a journalist, and does occasional security work.

Charlotte Harding grew up in St. John's, Nfld. and moved with her family to Regina in 1989. She earned her education degree and is a children's pastor and tutor.

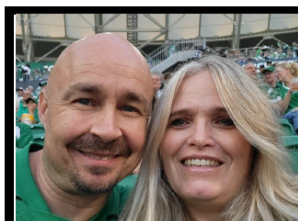

The Hardings' blended family has four children and a grandchild. Together, they present a message of redemption, perseverance, and restoration that they want you to hear!
